Explanation of Baptismal Promises
When your child was baptized, the pastors read the following promises, or something like these:
“As you bring your children to receive the gift of baptism, you are entrusted with responsibilities:

to live with them among God’s faithful people, bring them to the word of God and the holy supper, teach them the Lord’s Prayer, the Creed, and the Ten Commandments, place in their hands the Holy Scriptures,
and nurture them in faith and prayer,
so that your children may learn to trust God,
proclaim Christ through word and deed,
care for others and the world God made,
and work for justice and peace.”
(ELW, p. 228)

Baptismal promises come down to five basic promises. They are:

- To live among God’s faithful people
- To hear the Word of God and Share in the Lord’s Supper
- To proclaim the Good News in Christ through word and deed
- To serve all people following the example of Jesus
- To strive for justice and peace in all the earth

These are the promises that teenagers are asked to affirm when they affirm their baptism (when they are confirmed) and often times they are the promises that some churches use when welcoming new members.

Through the next several weeks, you are invited to explore these promises. Each week we will look at a different Bible story and a different promise. You are asked to read the same story each night during the week. Often times, we see different things when we hear the same story over and over. We also start seeing different ways the story may apply to our lives. Take your time. Enjoy telling to story in different ways.
You and your family are invited into an intentional exploration of these promises. It is easy to think about baptism only in relation to our children. How often have you thought about it and your faith life? When the children have grown up and left the house, will you still feel connected to church and to the people of God?

It is also easy to compartmentalize faith into an activity that we do on Sunday morning. However, we are called to Children of God every day. And through God’s grace we are invited to a new start every day! Sunday morning activities are an important part of our faith life, but it is not the only part. Worshiping together and sharing the Lord’s Supper with your faith family are a good place to start when living out Baptismal promises. We can also do Faith 5 at dinner or bedtime or even in the car! Living out the promises can be doing devotions by yourself, with your family, or in a group. It can be participating in Together in Faith events at the church. It can be doing service projects together. It can be praying for a family member, a friend, or a neighbor. There are many options and opportunities. Choosing to live out the promises with some intentionality speaks volumes about what is important to you and your family.

God’s blessings on you and your family as you walk this walk together. Enjoy your family time together and watch faith blossom and grow, not only in your children, but in yourself as well.
